Quick Tips for Maintaining Healthy Vision

From the moment we open our eyes in the morning, we depend on our vision to guide us through the day. Yet we rarely notice the conditions that can slowly but consistently wear down our sight. The problem goes beyond a little eye irritation: In America, every 11 minutes someone loses their vision. Experts believe half of these cases are preventable.

Whether we put in long hours on the job or are just relaxing, our eyes are constantly being exposed to harsh light, wind and heat or cold. Too much TV, hours at the computer, even dust from outdoor sports, can trigger redness and eye fatigue. Mold, pollen, household chemicals and pollution dry and irritate our eyes.

We value our sight but seldom think about protecting our vision. A few simple steps can help alleviate eye stress and slow the natural deterioration of our eyes as we age. A minute of care offers hours of relief and years of wellness. The approach outlined here together with an annual exam can help you take proper care of your eyes and maintain healthy vision for years to come.
